DESIGN ARTS

Please be sure you follow all requirements related to your application. Failure to comply with any of the requirements listed below may result in disqualification during the review process and/or make your application ineligible for an award.

Designers are ‘agents of change’ – they re-imagine our world by creating new forms, new products, new processes and new experiences. The Design Arts discipline does NOT include illustration, comic book art, concept art, character design, gaming design, costume design, and set design.

This discipline is for artists who are looking to design for the “real world” in the following categories:

- Architectural Design (including building design, interior design, landscape design, environmental design)
- Product Design (including industrial design, furniture design, toy design, vehicle design)
- Graphic Design (including communication design, packaging design, book design, signage design)
- Fashion Design (including clothing design, jewelry design, accessory design, and shoe design)

NOTE: If you are selected as a Winner and attend a YoungArts program, you will be part of an exhibition of works based on your portfolio submission. The curator will be making their selections for the exhibition from your portfolio.

Application Requirements

- Submit a portfolio of ten (10) individual pages* or images that demonstrates your ability to ideate through concepts, drawings/sketches and technical renderings, scaled models, objects or garments, etc. within the listed categories of design (Architectural Design, Product Design, Graphic Design, and/or Fashion Design). Documentation of work should be of high quality.
- To help us understand your design process, we ask that TWO of the ten pages/images show preliminary and process sketches/sketchbook pages and/or preliminary models/mock-ups that specifically relate to the project’s evolution and development. Process pages may be for different projects.
- Submit a 1-2 page statement. Please describe the primary ideas/goals of the projects included in your portfolio AND thoughtfully answer ONE of the following:
 - Select a work of design created by another designer that shows innovation in form, function, purpose, use, typology, or materiality. Tell us what makes this work great in your opinion.
 - Select an existing work of design that you believe has positively benefited culture/society in some way. Provide your individual analysis of its merits.
 - Select an existing work of design that you believe is problematic in its form, function, purpose, use, typology or materiality. Describe how you would redesign it to make it better in some way.

* A “page” consists of one or more images/drawings and/or model photographs on it that illustrates a particular design idea. While a page can (but does not have to) include multiple images, please do not clutter the page with too many images, as it is difficult to view.
